Child Abuse Evidence database

The Child Abuse Evidence database provides easy access to the best available – and highest quality – publications on all aspects of child maltreatment. Articles are linked to the appropriate cases in the Atlas so you always have easy access to the most relevant current research. All references receive an “Evidence rating”.

The Quarterly Update

The Quarterly Update is a medical journal that reviews recent peer-reviewed articles on the diagnosis, prevention and treatment of child abuse and neglect. Medical, legal, mental health and social work professionals known for their expertise and experience summarize the articles, chosen from hundreds of medical journals. These experts address the validity and significance of an article and how it relates to previously published research and clinical experience. This timely information keeps child abuse professionals apprised of the most recent findings, informs their clinical practice, and improves their ability to make sound decisions, based on the latest data.

Adopt a Colleague

When you subscribe to the Atlas and work with someone in a country that is considered by the International Monetary Fund to be a developing economy, we will grant them FREE access to the Child Abuse Atlas and the Child Abuse Library, no strings attached. We're committed to this cause and want to help you change the world for the better.

Join the community of medical, legal, mental health and social work professionals who use the Atlas to keep apprised of the most recent findings, to inform their clinical practice, and to improve their ability to make sound decisions, based on a rich database of medical cases and the latest evidence-based literature.
